A SUMMER HOME IN THE CANYON

NATURE'S PLAYGROUND IS AT OGDEN'S BACK DOOR

Electric Cars Carry the Businessman to the Most Delightful Spot in All the West Where the Atmosphere is a Tonic and the Scenes Are Inspiring—Trout-Fishing Within Half an Hour's Ride of the Center of the City—Summer Homes in the Canyon.

Residents of Ogden enjoy many opportunities, but one opportunity that is enjoyed is unique and is found in but few places. It is possible for the business man, clerk or mechanic to take a vacation of three months amidst the most beautiful and healthful surroundings and at the same time not miss one day at the desk, store or factory. So, too, the vacation may be enjoyed without increased expense over the cost of living in the city. Within a half hour after the day's work is finished, it is possible to be in the midst of surroundings that cannot be surpassed in any summer resort, no matter how much advertised.

The fact that Ogden canyon is so near the city makes possible the enjoyment of the unique pleasure. Afternoons, week-ends and holidays may be spent there as well as the evenings. Those who desire hotel accommodations may have them. The man who would rather live in camps find it possible to satisfy his desires. Others may live in summer homes built among the pleasant nooks along the river.

With the arrival of summer and warm weather, the annual pilgrimage of families to the canyon has begun. Many campers will remain during the entire summer. Almost every family will spend at least a week or ten days in a favored spot.

Those busy men who are so pressed with business cares and worries that they find it hard or impossible to take their families for outings during the summer, have their problems solved for them by living in Ogden. When the heat begins to have a depressing effect upon the wife and "kiddies," it is the work of a few moments to call a dray to move the household belongings needed to a suitable site in the canyon, where the wife may rest and enjoy the refreshing air of the mountains while the children grow strong and healthy by romping, wading or climbing the mountain trails. In the evening, the father gets upon the car which regularly runs to the canyon and in a few minutes he is enjoying his evening meal amid surroundings that encourage the appetite in a manner that no tonic could. The time consumed in going to the canyon is but a few minutes more than is required to take him to his home in the city. In some instances the trip to the canyon can be made in less time.

To the automobile owner or motorcyclist, the problem of getting to the summer home is still simpler. There are few roads in the United States that equal the highway through the canyon. A trip through the gorge is one continual pleasure.

What to do in the evenings and spare time is no problem. For the angler there is a clear and sparkling trout stream that can be whipped for the speckled beauties that lurk in the pools. The stream is stocked, regularly with small trout. Each season finds a new supply tempting the fisherman.

Those engaging in sedentary occupations may exercise their muscles by climbing the mountains, walking for miles up or down the main highway or engage in any physical exercise that will be all the more healthful because of the surroundings. A plunge in the refreshing water of the river is a nerve tonic that cannot be equaled. Others who come from work, tired mentally and physically, are given the opportunity of recuperating in a restful atmosphere.

Those far-sighted citizens who make their home in the canyon during the summer, sleeping in the fresh mountain air, playing or resting on nature's playgrounds, go through the summer with good appetites, splendid health and are able to attend to their business duties with brains fresh and active.
